

RED LIGHT, GREEN LIGHT

Here is a very simple game to play. It works well with one or two children on your driveway, or with a large group of preschool and older children.

Whatever the age of your children, they can be involved in making the red light and green light. All you need are two pieces of paper with a green circle and a red circle. They can be made with cut out shapes of construction paper, or colored-in circles with crayons, markers or even paint. They don't have to be perfect, so let your children help!

The game is simply to stop at the red light and go at the green light. Children can play riding bikes or scooters, or even just on foot. Children love taking turns, being in charge of the red and green lights.

Enjoy!
